

Sustainable Development Goals

Peace, Justice and Strong Institutions

16 PEACE, JUSTICE AND STRONG INSTITUTIONS

Encouraging the establishment of peaceful communities where no one is marginalized is essential for achieving sustainable development. This involves ensuring that everyone has access to justice, building effective and accountable institutions that are inclusive at all levels, and significantly reducing illicit flows of money and weapons. Additionally, it includes enhancing the recovery and return of stolen assets and combating all forms of organized crime..

As part of its efforts to promote the values of peaceful coexistence and community openness, a delegation from Alnoor University—including the University President, the Chairman of the Board of Trustees, and several university council members—visited the Annunciation Church in Mosul to extend greetings on the occasion of Easter. The delegation was received by Father Raed Adel, head of the Syriac Catholic Churches in Mosul and pastor of the church. The university representatives conveyed their heartfelt congratulations on the occasion, expressing hopes that peace and love will prevail among all segments of society.

