

Sustainable Development Goals

Peace, Justice and Strong Institutions

16 PEACE, JUSTICE AND STRONG INSTITUTIONS

Encouraging the establishment of peaceful communities where no one is marginalized is essential for achieving sustainable development. This involves ensuring that everyone has access to justice, building effective and accountable institutions that are inclusive at all levels, and significantly reducing illicit flows of money and weapons. Additionally, it includes enhancing the recovery and return of stolen assets and combating all forms of organized crime..

As part of its mission to promote Iraqi unity and foster a culture of coexistence, Alnoor University organized the “Mosul Exhibition” in the holy city of Karbala, coinciding with the Arbreen pilgrimage. The exhibition ran for seven consecutive days and featured several stations documenting the unity of Iraqis across different sects, religions, ethnicities, and minorities. It also highlighted the events of 2014 in the city of Mosul, emphasizing the lessons of resilience and national solidarity they conveyed. This initiative underscores Alnoor University’s commitment to linking its academic mission with a human and societal dimension, reinforcing the values of cohesion among the citizens of the nation.

